TENURE TRACK or LECTURER POSITION IN COUNSELLING PSYCHOLOGY

The Faculty of Education, Simon Fraser University, seeks applications for a tenure-track position in Counselling Psychology in the area of School Counselling. The appointment will be at the rank of Assistant Professor or Lecturer and will begin September 1, 2019.

The successful candidate will join an existing complement of counselling psychology scholars to contribute to the teaching of core counselling courses and offer clinical supervision. Applicants should have experience in school counselling (K-12) or counselling children and families. Candidates whose research program will enable the support of graduate student research are encouraged to apply. The final selection of candidates will be based on the best overall demonstration of potential for contribution to the program.

Candidates will contribute to the growth of the Counselling Psychology program at our SFU Surrey campus. Our program includes the SFU Surrey Counselling Centre that works in collaboration with the Surrey School Board. Along with clinical training, the Centre supports research in counselling practice and supervision.

Candidates must possess a doctoral degree in Counselling Psychology or related field and a minimum of three years of counselling practice experience in the field. Candidates for a tenure track position must demonstrate the ability to develop a program of research related to Counselling Psychology. Preference will be given to candidates who can contribute to three or more of the key teaching areas of the program including: school counselling, theories of counselling, counselling skills and strategies, assessment, ethics, group counselling, career counselling, multicultural counselling and family counselling. Candidates must demonstrate supervisory competencies (e.g., CCPA's Canadian Certified Counsellor-supervisor designation or Graduate level training in counsellor supervision) and experience providing clinical supervision. Applicants will be expected to teach and develop counselling related courses and programming at both the undergraduate and graduate level, work with pre-practicum and practicum students, and to supervise graduate research.
