CSSE President's Report 2022

From a small sample of the languages of this country, I begin by saying aniin (Saulteaux), tansi (ᑕᑭᑦ)(Cree), tanshi (Michif), ʔedlanet'e (Dene), âba wathtec doken yaû (Nakoda), oki (Blackfoot), she:kon (Iroquois), tunngasugitti (Inuktitut), bonjour, hello and welcome CSSE Delegates,

It is with humility that I welcome you to the 50th annual conference of the Canadian Society for the Study of Education. Unlike any other year, we do not have a host university, but I would encourage us to take a moment at the beginning of the day or before our sessions to acknowledge that CSSE resides on territories of the Indigenous Peoples, the First Nations, Métis people, and Inuit – people who have been stewards of the land for thousands upon thousands of years. Indigenous peoples, who make up approximately 5% of the Canadian population, are diverse in cultural traditions and languages (more than 70 languages), which are primarily guided by the ecosystems with their territories. I recognize that First Nations University of Canada resides on Treaty 4 and 6 territories, the original lands of the Cree, Saulteaux, Dakota, Lakota, Nakoda, Dene, and homeland of the Métis Nation.

This past year the 'truth', which many Indigenous peoples have known about Indian Residential Schools, became known to the world. The "discoveries" of children buried on school grounds have made us wonder about the state of 'reconciliation' in Canada and hopefully, because of this sad and horrific news, reconciliation efforts have increased in quality and intensity. With this, I would encourage us to take moments of silence for the Indigenous children who died away from home while attending federally- and church-operated school systems.

The conference theme this year is CSSE at 50: Learning from our Past, Navigating the Present, and Shaping the Future. This year's theme encourages us contemplate past successes and challenges, navigate the uncertainty of the present, and look towards shaping a healthier, relational, reciprocal, ethical, and sustainable future. Much like the teachings connected to the philosophy of seven generations held by many Indigenous peoples, we are asked to reflect and learn from the patterns from the past so we can understand our current landscape and mindfully plan for those not yet born seven generations into the future. This is a perspective, a way of being, knowing, and doing, that has sustainability and stewardship at its core – it frames decision-making (in our case) for leaders, teachers, researchers, and students. It is a philosophy that has us consider time in a non-linear manner, as past, present, and future are embedded in each moment. This year, I am very excited to hear about her experiences and views on education from the Governor General of Canada, Her Excellency the Right Honourable Mary Simon. I am also looking forward to learning from the esteemed plenary panelists, including Drs. Verna St. Denis, Sharon Cook, and Lee Airton, who will respond to the conference theme, answering questions such as, "What have we learned in the last 50 years? What has been disruptive and ground-breaking? What do we need to let go of and what do we need to amplify? What are we aspiring to and working towards in the next 50 years?"

Once again, this will be a virtual conference because of the pandemic. Many did not anticipate that the COVID-19 virus would still have humanity in its grips two years later. I have marvelled and have been inspired by the resilience, adaptability, compassion, and hope that has been evident all around us during these challenging times. This pandemic has tried and tested us repeatedly to exercise community, patience, humility, courage, creativity, and love. We've also seen, more clearly and because they've been enhanced, inequities and injustices, and have been asked in bold ways to address them. As I wrote in my last welcome message, "Cree concepts such as wâhkôhtowin (interrelatedness of all creation), wītaskīwin (living together in peace), wīcêhitowin (working together) offer important teachings for our time.” Let us lean into them.

I hope to see many of you at this year’s CSSE Awards Event, the CSSE AGM, the Spotlight Sessions, and the numerous special events taking place within your associations and SIGs.

The CSSE Board of Directors would like to sincerely thank everyone who has supported CSSE throughout the process of planning a virtual conference. We would like to recognize our Local Arrangements Coordinator, Elizabeth Saville, who has been working very hard over this year to lead the volunteers and manage arrangements. Thank you as well to the volunteers who are supporting the bilingual activities at this year’s conference. I would also like to recognize the program coordinators (Association and SIG members) who have undertaken the huge task of scheduling the multitude of sessions that exist in the program. I know how much time and thought this takes, and your work is so important and very valued.

We couldn’t do what we do without the amazing and incredible staff and team of conference volunteers. Gitchi-miigwetch (much thanks) to Ms. Barb Ford, our courteous and conscientious membership expert; Ms. Sharon Hu, our excellent journal manager for the Canadian Journal of Education, Mr. Michael Holden, our gracious and very organized conference manager; Mr. Cameron Smith, our eager Communications Manager; and Mr. Tim Howard, our truly amazing Director of Administration. Once again, this team has helped us pivot and lead the CSSE conference into a new and engaging virtual forum.

Finally, I would like to introduce you to the new members of the CJE/RCÉ team Drs. Jeannie Kerr and Ee-Seul Yoon. I would like to commend the editorial board at our CJE/RCÉ: editors, Drs. Carole Fleuret , Blaine Hatt, Nancy Maynes, and Thomas Ryan, book review editors, Drs. Adam Adler, and Samira ElAtia, and Sharon Hu, as managing editor. CJE/RCÉ is so important for our CSSE community, and I appreciate the dedication and hard work that this team engages in to ensure that we have a high-quality journal to disseminate our research.

This year the executive continued to engage in dialogue and consider ways to further address racism and oppression in all forms, and we have also begun to explore ways to become more accessible to membership and to the community. For this year and for 2023, CSSE will continue to:

- Match the Federation’s initiative to waive conference fees to Indigenous and Black students
- Host current, relevant, diverse, and engaging panels, and keynote sessions such as the one that we have this year
- Encourage fierce and difficult dialogue around combatting systemic and structural racism and advancing decolonization, equity, diversity, inclusion, and accessibility efforts in education; and, instill frameworks and accountability measures that support these areas
- Ensure that CSSE spaces that we move in and out of throughout the year are safe, respectful, and inspiring
- Find ways to include community members to enrich our learning

I look forward to seeing how Igniting Change and the accompanying Charter on Equity, Diversity, Inclusion, and Decolonization in the Social Sciences and Humanities will impact Congress and our associations in the coming months. Both documents speak to systemic change and offer recommendations that can be implemented as is or adapted. My hope is that we act and are accountable to what has been demanded of us in the realms of Indigenization, decolonization, equity, diversity, inclusion, and accessibility. The time has come.

For all who participate, the CSSE Board of Directors hope that this conference is filled with inspiring, thought-provoking, boundary-pushing, and rich learning and virtual networking opportunities surrounding and beyond topics related to educational research.

This is my last welcome message, and I want to say that it has been an incredible journey. It was not until a prominent scholar/researcher wrote me an email saying that she did not anticipate seeing a First Nations woman leader (Anishinaabe-qwe) in this position in her lifetime that I realized the magnitude of my stepping into this presidency. Thank you to those who had confidence in my ability to be your leader, and those that supported me (especially Tim and Mike). Because of the dramatic changes required from all of us due to the Covid-19 virus, it has been a momentous time to be in a leadership position. Now I will have the privilege of supporting the incoming President, Dr. Louis Volante, as he steps into his role after our AGM this May.

ni-gichi naennimak ni-tiniwaymahgunuk/ in honour of all my relatives, misiwaykomigukpaypomwayotung/Jacqueline Ottmann (Saulteaux/Anishinaabe)

President, CSSE
