

Assistant Professor, Teaching Scholar Track in Health and Physical Education

The Faculty of Education, Western University, invites applications for a probationary Teaching Scholar (TS) appointment, in the area of health and physical education, with a preferred start date of July 1, 2023. This probationary appointment will be made at the rank of Assistant Professor. Appointment made at the rank of Assistant Professor will lead to consideration of continuing status and promotion to Associate Professor, TS at the end of the probationary period (maximum 6 years). The workload for the Teaching Scholar is 60% teaching, 20% educational scholarship, and 20% service. The salary will be commensurate with the successful candidate's qualifications and experience.

At the time of application candidates must:

- have a completed Ph.D. degree in education or related field with a demonstrated record of excellence in teaching and educational scholarship in health and physical education;
- have a degree in teacher education;
- and be eligible for professional qualifications in teacher education.

The successful candidate will 1) teach and contribute to the development, implementation and maintenance of health and physical education at the undergraduate and graduate levels, 2) be expected to teach in person and on campus in the Bachelor of Education in the area of health and physical education, 3) supervise graduate students and participate in community service within and beyond the Faculty of Education, and 4) have a track record of educational scholarship that includes peer-reviewed publications, and national/international exposure through conference presentations or the development of open educational resources, as examples. Candidates are encouraged to engage with one of our five research centres.

Western's Faculty of Education has been at the leading edge of education in Canada since 1962 and offers educational opportunities at the baccalaureate, master's and doctoral levels.
